THE Johnson Convention.

Our readers have had the reported proceedings of the Convention which met at Philadelphia last week—if "proceedings" they can be called. It was, in fact, little else than a convocation of politicians from the odds and ends of parties outside the Republican organization, met to do and say just what President Johnson directed (by his Lieutenants, Seward, Weed and Raymond), to be said and done; and to organize the rebels and copperheads with a few war dem-

Will any copperhead who went to that Convention really admit that? Not one. And yet the bulk of that convention—the mon-strously representing constituencies there—claimed to have said this unanimously. "A stupendous lie!" Indeed—both address and resolutions. No rebel nor copperhead really endorsed or endorsed them—and as yet the whole strength of the Johnson

State Convention is made up of rebels and copperheads.

The few office-loving Republicans (War

Democrats, and honest but badly deceived men (and there were some such) who at tended, comprised but an infinitesimal part of the whole, and were sent there by no bodie of voters at home. There was not a single Convention of Republicans anywhere in the land, to select delegates to that body at Philadelphia. That Maine delegation which was officially admitted comprised one or two relegated Republicans, a war democrat or two, and some old-fashioned straight whigs, none of whom were ever Republicans or anti-slavery men in reality—and these were objected as delegates by a meeting of so-called Union men who attended at the Democratic State Convention in Portland and were sent there by nobody. The meeting was at a small room in the Rebel House, and it is said there were not more than a dozen or fifteen persons present. This was the "mass meeting" which elected the Maine delegates to the Johnson Convention! And a pretended "mass meeting" for the Fourth District was announced in the evening organ of the Johnson-democratic-rebel-copperhead party, and having been held here to elect district delegates—and of the thirteen thousand Union voters in this District, just seven attended. In the Third District a similar meeting at Waterville was attended by about four patriotic individuals. And yet delegates thus chosen pretended to represent the Union men of Maine, and to divide with the democratic delegates not admitted, the dispensation of national offices and patronage in this State. A more stupendous humbug and windy was never perpetrated in this country—not even by the famous "Tyler party" of 1841, which was very comfortably accommodated in a single omnibus, upon some State occasion.

The personnel of the Convention was not half so good a humbug and lie, however, as the principles pretended to be put forth as a platform. Both the address and the resolutions proceeded upon the false and deceptive basis that the Southern States not admitted to representation are, or ought to be, in the same position and condition as before the war—that they have the same "rights" and privileges that they would have if they had never engaged in the monstrous crime of rebellion, or caused the country to shed torrents of its best blood and to expend thousands of millions of the people's treasure. This Johnson Convention assumes that men thus guilty are of right entitled to patronage in the immediate hand of the government, and upon that point the moment that they are created to lay down their arms, and when President Johnson declares that peace is restored. The address and resolutions proceeded upon this assumption, and upon the further assumption that our loyal Congress has no right to impose conditions upon the restoration of rebels to power.

While the President had such power, the entire address is based upon this assumption;

Presentation of the Proceedings of the Philadelphia Convention to the President.

Speech of the Hon. Reverdy Johnson.

The President's Reply.

War Vessels Being sent to Pacific to Protect U. S. Interests.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.

The following is Hon. Reverdy Johnson's speech to the President:

Before placing in your hands the object for which the Convention was called, the enthusiasm with which we have met in Philadelphia, on Tuesday, the 14th, charged with the duty of presenting you with an authorized copy of the proceedings of the Convention, I feel it my duty to say that the Convention has been a success.

The allusion in Hon. Johnson's address to the determination of our country to enforce an actual blockade cannot be taken as a declaration of war, but as a declaration of the President's duty.

Mr. Johnson and the members of the Convention have been successful in their efforts to secure the passage of the bill for the reconstruction of the Union.
